SOCIAL LIFE AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By GRACE PORTER HOPKINS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—This week of the Washington school year was marked by the arrival of President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the arrival in the city of the most distinguished guests of the year, Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Davidson.

When Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt reached the White House on Thursday, they found in each room, and every thing spick and span about the place, ready for their fall entertaining, known in official parlance as the "social season."

The state suite of rooms on the first floor, which at the request of the President, is opened to the public during the absence of himself and family, is again enclosed, leaving only the famous East room and the lower corridor open to visitors for each day.

These corridors, sometimes spoken of as the cloister feature of the White House, are particularly interesting, because the fine portraits in oil of former occupants of the mansion. Here, too, are to be found specimens of the cabinet and different administrations, and the hand-some mahogany dining table, around which have gathered Presidents Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley, with their respective guests, the old Van Buren cabinet, and many other relics of by-gone days, which are constantly displayed.

On Sunday afternoon President and Mrs. Roosevelt began their dinner-giving by entertaining in honor of Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Davidson. For sixty were laid around an oval table in the State dining-room, and the same elaborate service was used as at White House formal dinners.

Official plates and the new $300,000 Sevres figures were brought out, with the bisque chafers that were presented to Mr. Roosevelt by Count Bismarck on the occasion of his recent visit to America, when the statue to his illustrious kinsman was unveiled in Lafayette Square.

Also a notable feature of the table decoration.

On Sunday afternoon President and Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied the English prelate and his wife to St. Albans, where in the wooded glades around the National Cathedral close to the city, Mr. Davidson will speak to an audience made up of the clergy, the laity and the vested choir of the various Protestant Episcopal churches in the diocese.

He is the first of the noted bishops of this country, Canada and the West Indies who were present and President Roosevelt addressed the ten thousand people.

Rev. George C. Bratenahl, rector of St. Albans, returned this week from a visit to Hon. and Mrs. James R. Garfield at their home at Mentor, O. . . .

The Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Henry Yates Satterlee, have just returned from their summer vacation spent at Atlantic City. They will remain in the Archdiocese until the 1st of October, when they will leave for their home on Highland Terrace, and have invited other distinguished guests to a reception later in the evening.

A public reception at the Corcoran Art Gallery on Saturday afternoon will further mark this visit of an archbishop of Canterbury to a foreign land. The Archbishop is accompanied by a numerous staff and has almost as much prestige as a regularly accredited diplomat. He is the first peer in England and is next in rank to the prince of the royal blood. His coming at this time is of great importance to the churchmen of the country, many of whom are in Washington for his visit.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Chief Justice and Miss Fuller, Associate Justice and Mrs. White, Admiral Dewey, Surgeon General and Mrs. Rixey, Ambassador and Lady Durand, Miss Durand and the Ladies are among the Archbishop's fellow churchmen in this city.

Lieutenant-General Prince Fushimi, who comes to this country as the personal representative of the Emperor of Japan on a special mission to the St. Louis Exposition, is also in the city. He is a notable visitor to be honored by official and diplomatic society. Prince Fushimi has won signal honors in the Eastern wars, having commanded the Japanese forces at the famous battle of Nanshan Hill. This battle-scarred hero is due to arrive during the early part of October, accompanied by the usual large retinue of secretaries and aides.

Anticipating these various arrivals and the return of the International Geographers' society is gathering home from the four corners of the earth, many of them scattered after the spring season. Mrs. Shaw and Miss Wilson have represented the Cabinet since the early part of the month. Next came Mrs. Taylor, from Milwaukee, and Mrs. Hitchcock, from the family home in New Hampshire. Mrs. Taft arrived the 20th, and Mrs. Metcalf followed the next day. Hay is also at her home in the city, after a pleasant summer divided between her two daughters, Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. James W. Adams. In the city, and her own vacation-home in New England. Mrs. Paul Morton, wife of the new Secretary of the Navy, was in town for a few days this week, but will not remain permanently in the city. The widow of her niece, Miss Jean Morton, to Joseph Cudahy, of Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Rebecca Knox to Mr. George Findall, of Pittsburgh, is another official wedding. The bride is a large contingent of fashionable folk from the capital. President and Mrs. Roosevelt and nearly all of Senator Knox's former associates in the Cabinet will attend the ceremony, and take advantage of the opportunity to offer congratulations to the bride's very intimate friend, Miss Alice Mohler, whose own wedding is to be an event of the early season.

Quite a number of diplomats went over to Philadelphia for the wedding of Miss Ruth Snyder and Count de Borchgrave d'Alton, of Brussels. The ceremony took place on Thursday at the bride's home on Rittenhouse Square and was witnessed for the groom by the Belgian Minister, Baron Moncheur, and several members of the Russian and Austrian Embassy staff. Among the bride's official witnesses, was her uncle, Ambassador Charlemagne Tower, at whose home in Berlin, the international romance began.

Signor and Signora Lobel, the former a counselor of state and member of the Chamber of Deputies from Turin, Italy, have lately been entertained by Ambassador and Baroness Des Planches at the Italian Embassy. Accompanied by their two daughters and their hosts, they are now en route to St. Louis, where they expect to join the delegates to the Geographic Congress for their trip to the Grand Canon, the Yellowstone Park, and to Mexico. The Misses Lobel are members of the Royal Italian Society, having won their spurs in Alpine climbing. They have also contributed valuable papers on exploring in Alaska.

Joy reigns in the younger set over the unexpected return of Mr. Andre Brodoff, who resigned his post in the diplomatic corps to enter the Czar's army in the Far East. En route to St. Petersburg, he was captured by the British and persuaded to forsake for a time his military ambitions, and return to the diplomatic service. Mr. Brodoff is the expert chauffeur, and a well-known all-round sportsman, who was last season, the ever-ready man-of-all-work in the set led by Miss Alice Roosevelt and Countess Marguerite Cassini.

Next to his return to Washington, the most interesting announcement comes from Cheyenne, Wyoming, and one of the wealthiest men in the State. As a widower of several years standing, he has been a favorite dinner guest in official society. His distinguished colleagues in the bachelor set are Senators Allison, of Iowa, and Fry, of Maine. Secretaries Wilson and Moody, of the Cabinet, and Senator Cannon, of the House of Representatives.
